

International teacher training course in Afacan/Turkey 24.-29.09.2012

Migration in Europe - Migration in Turkey

A practical approach with exercises and teaching units on the topic of migration and background information about internal and external migration in Turkey

Organized by HVD Berlin

About the course:

Migration has become a relevant topic in a lot of European schools. More and more students with migratory backgrounds are in the classroom, with new challenges for the teachers.

The course will approach the topic from two sides.

New methods on the topic of migration and intercultural learning are presented in a practical way, we will try out this methods.

On the other hand we will introduce Turkey not only a main country of emigration to Europe, but also as a country with a large internal migration. The course will give an overview of the current situation, as well as visits to schools and projects, where we will meet teachers and people involved in migration projects there.

Nowadays students with migratory background especially those coming from the so called "muslim countries" are confronted with prejudices. The course will help to get some insights into the Turkish society, and - with a focus on educational questions- develop intercultural learning.

Venue:

The course will take place at Afacan Genclik evi, 438 sokak, No:2 ,Yenisakran/Turkey. Lovated 90 km north of Izmir directly at the Aegean coast

About our institution:

The teacher training department of the humanistic association of Germany (HVD), Section Berlin is engaged in various European Networks an projects on the topic of migration. We offer a subject called "Lebenskunde" in Berlin public schools, a subjects which deals with ethic and moral learning from a non-religious perspective. The human rights convention from the UN is one of our guidelines. Anti-discrimination and integration are important topics in our teaching and teacher trainings. Since many years we have contacts to Turkish institutions like the international intercultural centre in Afacan, the venue of our course. We will offer the course on an European level, because the topic is relevant in a lot of European countries and the exchange about experiences and strategies can be very fruitful.
